Township Withdraws from Potential Energy Aggregation Program Amid Contract Concerns

Keeping their pledge to halt progress on an Energy Aggregation savings program if favorable terms were not met, the Manchester Township Council, with the support of Mayor Kenneth Palmer, last week passed a resolution of withdrawal from a potential cooperative agreement including other local towns.

Manchester officials had been in talks to join the cooperative agreement with Stafford Township and Lacey Township that would pool customers together to secure a bulk rate for electricity from a third party supplier at a cost lower than JCP&L. From the start, Manchester officials made it clear to residents that the Township would not move forward without favorable contractual terms.

The State Board of Public Utilities Rate Counsel recently reviewed the proposal and recommended that the Township should alter the terms of the agreement because it requires Manchester to remain in the cooperative even if the aggregation cost is above JCP&L's price. The Township Council, Mayor Palmer and Township Attorney expressed the same concern during negotiations and agreed that the terms were unacceptable.

While residents would have had the option to opt-out of the aggregation program at any point, including during an unfavorable rate change, this process would require action by each residential electricity subscriber. As a safeguard, Township officials wanted the ability to terminate the program for all residents should the aggregation rate be beyond JCP&L's newly adjusted price. Since the energy consultant in concert with Lacey Township would not agree to alter the terms, Manchester officials decided not to move forward with this cooperative agreement.

"Energy aggregation is a concept that the Township has been interested in for many years, as it promises savings on a basic necessity. As is evident by this withdrawal, the Council and I are committed to completing our due diligence before entering into any agreement," said Mayor Palmer. "The terms must be favorable for our residents."

MEGAN'S LAW OFFENDER ARRESTED FOR FAILING TO REGISTER

Shawn Milne

On July 20th Toms River Detectives Jennifer Grob and Thomas Grosse signed criminal complaints against Shawn Milne, 46 of Fischer Boulevard in Toms River. The charges are as a result of him failing to meet his registration obligation under New Jersey's Megan's Law. Registrants are required by New Jersey state law to either register annually or every ninety (90) days with the police department of the municipality in which they reside.

The investigation revealed that Milne failed to register his address with the Toms River Township Police Department within the specified time frames. He also did not meet the requirements for notification of his employment status which is also in violation of the conditions of his Megan's Law status. Toms River now remains as Milne's current residential municipality. An arrest warrant was reviewed and approved which charged him with two counts of failing to register under NJ Statute 2C:7-2. On July 20th at 8 pm Milne was taken into custody without incident at his residence on Fischer Boulevard by Officer Travis Seaman. Also cooperating with the investigation were members of the Ocean County Prosecutors Office. He remains in the Ocean County Jail on $25,000 bail.

Milne is facing the third (3rd) degree crimes of failure to register pursuant to N.J.S.A. 2C:7-2d(1). These statutes (N.J.S.A. 2C:7-1 through 2C:7-23) were passed on Monday October 31, 1994 by the New Jersey Legislature and are interchangeably referred to as Megan's Law and / or Registration and Community Notification Laws. Ordinarily, the maximum potential punishment on this third (3rd) degree crime is 5 years in New Jersey State Prison with up to a $15,000 fine for each charge.

UNITED WAY OF MONMOUTH AND OCEAN COUNTIES FORMED BY MERGER OF LOCAL UNITED WAYS TO SERVE THE JERSEY SHORE

United Way of Monmouth County and United Way of Ocean County have merged to create United Way of Monmouth and Ocean Counties. The new organization has a combined

30-member Board of Directors and will maintain its two offices in Farmingdale and Toms River. It will jointly serve the residents of both Monmouth and Ocean Counties by partnering with local organizations to build initiatives that address common goals in the areas of education, income and health.

“Separate entities can’t make the same impact as a unified one,” says Jeremy Grunin, new Board Chair of United Way of Monmouth and Ocean Counties, Executive Director of The Jay & Linda Grunin Foundation and Vice President of Grunin Holdings. “Together, we’ll continue to make a difference for our communities through initiatives that create lasting change, but we’ll also extend our reach, build broader partnerships and deepen the impact of our efforts for the Jersey Shore.”

Prior to being appointed Board Chair of the combined organization, Grunin served on the board of United Way of Ocean County for the past three years, most recently as an Executive Board member.

“As a unified entity, we are poised to combine our individual strengths and best practices to better serve the residents of Monmouth and Ocean Counties,” adds Timothy C. Hearne, former President and CEO of United Way of Monmouth County and now President and CEO of the new organization. “There is great enthusiasm among our staff and Board members as we come together, and we’re excited to begin this new chapter in our organization’s history.”

Among the first joint initiatives will be the Stuff the Bus drive, which collects essential school supplies for students in needs throughout Monmouth and Ocean Counties. Items will be collected at area stores in the two counties from July 30 through August 14; please visit uwmoc.org/upcoming-events for locations and details. In addition, United Way’s Financial Success Center is now open to Ocean County residents. Part of the Meridian Community Resource Center at the Freehold Raceway Mall, the Financial Success Center provides free resources to help area residents move from financial difficulty to economic well-being; visit uwfinancialsuccess.org for more information about services offered. United Way of Monmouth and Ocean Counties now also has a combined Volunteer Center, which links local agencies with members of the community who want to volunteer. Interested individuals and nonprofits can visit uwmoc.org/volunteer to register.

For more information about the newly formed United Way of Monmouth and Ocean Counties, please call Timothy C. Hearne at 732.938.5988 ext. 2050 or visit uwmoc.org.

ARIES: 21st March & 20th April

It will be easy to realize the type of things you need to let go of or get rid of so that you can get matters in place in a settled manner. What can be playing a strong role is having developed a completely different view of where you now want to head in life. It should not be difficult to move on with a sense of confidence to early August

TAURUS: Born between 21st April & 20th May

You should feel a lot more confident when it comes to communicating your ideas to others. It will not be difficult to work out what they are prepared to accept or listen to. It would be best not to put forward anything too radical when it comes to the position they have taken. Just move on and focus on structuring your own situation.

GEMINI: 21st May & 20th June

Get final details into place when it comes to financial matters connected to daily activities. Don't be tempted to go off track because something out of the ordinary suddenly appeals to you. You should then be able to move on and enjoy situations more to your liking to early August. There could also be a lot of running around.

CANCER: 21st June & 22nd July

Putting final touches in place when it comes to personal matters should be quite easy as long as you don't take on obligations that can suddenly pop up. Finances will require some attention to early August. It would be better to find ways of enjoying yourself that do not involve a lot of spending. Don't jump to conclusions.

LEO: 23rd July & 22nd August

Focus on what needs to be finalized so that things can be put into place in a stable manner. This might go back to what was attempted early in the year. Mercury, the planet of communication moves into your sign to 31st July and Venus until the 6th August, generating decisions about pleasure, peace and harmony in your life.

VIRGO: (Born between 23rd August & 22nd September

It should not be difficult to combine ideas that you have with what needs to be your main priorities. Whether someone else agrees is not the point - you have to be comfortable. You will go into a waiting stage to early August. It would be wise to find quiet time to yourself so that you can contemplate what is best for you.

LIBRA: 23rd September & 22nd October

Time to review what you have learned about yourself over the last 12 months, especially when it comes to pressure others place upon you for greater freedom for them. Challenge any commitments you no longer want to accept. Then you can move on and consider your own priorities in a balanced manner to early August.

SCORPIO: 23rd October & 21st November

The opportunity to take action towards initiating future goals will fall into place more easily now where early in the year it was met with hurdles or blockages. You should not ignore the way this can dramatically alter daily routines you now have in place. Making the commitment can be necessary from now to early August.

SAGITTARIUS: 22nd November & 21st December

Support could come from surprising quarters, particularly involving any situations in which you have needed to be creative. In some ways it will be like finalizing things so that you can begin to move on from early August. You can feel as though you have come out of the unknown with a whole new world in front of you to explore.

CAPRICORN: 22nd December & 19th January

Don't ignore any rebellion that might be expressed by someone else. They could be more determined than ever to carry through with whatever they articulate. You just need to ensure that it cannot interfere with your own priorities and this should not be difficult for you to do. Consider what you have learnt about obligations.

AQUARIUS: 20th January & 18th February

The more comfortable you are about your commitments the easier it will be to get daily routines in place that are complimentary to the situation. Any lacking of appreciation you may have felt from others recently can begin to change and improve greatly to early August. You will become busier with others as well.

PISCES: 19th February & 20th March

You have had the opportunity to see what is possible to create in the future though you might have to accept that it needs to remain in the bounds that can be afforded financially. You will need to focus on details or what needs to be done on a daily basis to early August. You are not likely to get much encouragement from others.

Given its merits, officials now plan to move forward with energy aggregation, but without the use of a cooperative. The Township Council is expected to introduce a resolution to advertise for bids for a consultant at an upcoming regular meeting.

Energy aggregation provides for a lower electricity bill while retaining service from JCP&L. As Mayor Palmer previously explained, JCP&L will continue to service residents' homes while the electricity will be delivered by another provider at a lower cost. The program works through an "opt out" system, meaning residents would be automatically enrolled unless they return a postcard indicating they do not want to participate. Residents with solar panels and those already enrolled in another energy program will not be included in the program.

SCHOOL BOARD CANDIDATES FILING DEADLINE IS JULY 25

CANDIDATES seeking school board seats still have until 4 p.m., Monday, July 25 to file their nominating petitions at the Ocean County Clerk's Office in order to have their name placed on the Nov. 8 General Election Ballot, according to Ocean County Clerk Scott M. Colabella.

Nominating petitions for School Board can be obtained in person at either the Ocean County Clerk's Main Office, at the Ocean County Courthouse, Election Services, Room 107 at 118 Washington St., Toms River, or at the Ocean County Southern Service Center, 179 South Main St., Manahawkin. The offices are staffed from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"The Ocean County Clerk's Office makes every effort to inform potential candidates of approaching filing deadlines," said Ocean County Freeholder Director John P. Kelly, who serves as liaison to the County Clerk. "Through the office's website, social media, and other avenues, County Clerk Colabella provides the information needed by both candidates and voters."

Colabella noted that all Ocean County school districts now hold their Board of Education elections in November.

"A law signed by the Governor in 2014 moved the petition filing deadline for school board candidates from June to the last Monday in July to provide candidates with more time to submit their petitions," Colabella said.

A total of 70 school board seats will appear on the November ballot in various school districts throughout Ocean County. A complete listing of all candidates who file petitions for school board will be available shortly after the July 25 deadline at www.oceancountyclerk.com or www.facebook.com/oceancountyclerk.

School board candidates seeking additional information on the petition filing process can contact the Ocean County Clerk's Election Office at (732) 929-2153.

"It's important for candidates to get their paperwork in on time," Colabella said. "That is what guarantees their place on the ballot."

BAYVILLE CHURCH HELPS THE NEEDY

By JO ANN LA RUSSO

It's so easy to take things, like food on the table, for granted. But with today's economy, and joblessness on the rise, it is no joke. More and more people are turning to food pantries for help.

They don't like it. But they have no choice, especially those with children.

United Methodist Church, on Rte 9, in Bayville, is just one of many such food pantries. And they give lots to those who are signed up. Each Tuesday and Saturday between 8 and 11 am, if you are a resident of Berkeley Township, just go to the Fellowship Hall, at the rear of the church, and ladies await you for information.

"You will need to bring with you a picture ID with your address, and your SSI or SSD amount from Social Security, and that's about it,"

Once registered, you sign in at Fellowship Hall, on any of those two days. There's not much of a wait," said Joyce, who is a volunteer registrar. Food item wants are filled out there. Before you know it, you're name is called, and you go into the "Loaves and Fishes" Food Room, where volunteers, Fran Galletto, Ray Louise Wojcicki, and teens, Gregory and Daniel Leifert, will take your pre-order.

They offer brand name breads, bagels, milk, juice and cereals.

Chips, frozen meats, fish and chicken, bags full of unsold WaWa sandwiches and hashbrowns, tomatoes on the vine, 10 lb. bags of potatoes, carrots, onions, and other in-season produce.

Also offered are sanitary products, toothpaste, mouthwash, oragel, deodorants, and sunscreens in many forms.

You will leave with several bags of food, all of which are carried to your car by volunteers.

"I don't know what we'd do without this," said a young mother of four. "It really is a blessing, and we are so very grateful!"

Yes," said another recipient. "It certainly helps ends meet. We are all thankful."

Three youth summer programs are being offered this summer by the Conserve Wildlife Foundation of NJ:

IT'S ALMOST THAT TIME - By JoAnn LaRusso

Sadie Rose Nastasi will be born into this wonderful world on, or about, Aug. 16th, and new mommy to be, Laura and husband, Nick, are just ecstatic.

That happiness overextends to his daughters, Cheyann, 15, who lives with the couple, and Hailey, 16, of Florida, along with granny to be, Ellen Kaveney, and husband, Larry. Laura's dad, Mike Boyle of Forked River, and dozens of guests evidenced that last week at Laura's surprise baby shower.

Of course, the theme was pink, right down to the writing on the huge cake laid out on the dessert table. The buffet that was served included everything from soup to nuts, and then some. Many of the guests offered to bring a dish, and chicken, baked ziti, cold cuts and salads were eaten with gusto by the roughly 70 friends that attended.

Laura, as guest of honor, sat in her tulle covered throne, with all her bridal attendants, and opened the mountain of gifts piled high on the gift table. Rose was her grandmother, Rose Cucci's name. "We both liked the name Sadie," said the mom-to-be.

Laura's, Aunt Kathy, made the "wishing well", that is a so popular at today's baby showers, where guests put in little baby favors like rattles, teething rings, you get the idea.

"It's a beautiful affair," said Donna of Toms River. "I'm so happy for Laura. She's been married a year and was hoping. She loves Nick's daughters as her own, and now little Sadie Rose will make them whole."

The couple owns a landscaping business. "That work will be put on hold for me," Laura said. The real job will be when Sadie Rose is born, and Laura gets up every day and does what mothers do.

"I know I'm ready for it," she said. "The closer the date gets, the more excited we become. And Cheyenne and Hailey are thrilled as well. They can't wait to hold their little baby sister," said Laura.

"As a friend of grandmother to be, Ellen, I can only say I wish Laura the best, and a beautiful healthy baby.

And when Sadie Rose is born, I guess you could easily say it will be a "fullhouse," joked Janie Colangelo, of Seaside.

The pre-natal memories will fade fast when Sadie is born, and starts growing up as quickly as babies do, from toddlers to teens. "The ultrasound was magnificent," Laura rightly bragged. "They are so magical. I couldn't stop giggling through the whole experience. Nick had tears in his eyes."

We wish this happy family the best, and that is what they look forward to, and deserve. Raising a child is no easy task. It takes lots of patience and lots of love!

"We're ready," Laura said. "More than ready. Just thinking that it's almost time for her to be borne, is more than I could hope and pray for!"

Welcome, Sadie Rose Nastasi..You are loved!

South Jersey Cultural Alliance Cut Ribbon on New Offices

at Stockton's Kramer Hall on July 19

Galloway, N.J. - The South Jersey Cultural Alliance has relocated to Kramer Hall, Stockton University's instructional site in Hammonton, N.J., and will celebrate with ribbon-cutting festivities and $1,000 gift to Main Street Hammonton on Tuesday, July 19 from 1-2:30 p.m.

The event begins at the site at 30 Front St. at 1 p.m. with a networking lunch including SJCA board members, Stockton President Harvey Kesselman and other university officials, officials from Hammonton, SJCA members, and partners and funders including Creative NJ, the NJ State Council on the Arts, ArtPride NJ, Advocates for NJ History, PNC Bank and New Jersey Community Capital.

The event will include a tour of the Hammonton Arts District (weather permitting) and/or a tour of the exhibit located within the Art Gallery at Kramer Hall which honors the various historic industries of Hammonton. This exhibit is a collaboration between Stockton University and the Noyes Museum of Art.

South Jersey Cultural Alliance (SJCA), a nonprofit membership organization, serves over 100 regional arts and history organizations in South Jersey. SJCA strengthens members by providing marketing and promotion, professional development, information, resources and advocacy.

The group sees the move to Kramer Hall as helping to align its efforts with those of other non-profit agencies, businesses and educational institutions which focus on the promotion of arts, history and culture of South Jersey.

President Kesselman initiated the collaborative effort between Stockton and SJCA at the Noyes Museum's annual gala in October 2015 and will give welcoming remarks at the event.

"SJCA is delighted to be part of Hammonton's creative community. With a growing arts district, two co-op artists spaces, the Noyes Museum, the Eagle Theatre, a Main Street Third Thursday, a makerspace and extraordinary culinary opportunities, SJCA fits right in," said Karen Pinzolo, executive director. "With SJCA's new affiliation with Stockton University, we are looking forward to new synergies to strengthen our community in Hammonton as well as the entire southern New Jersey region."

Hammonton officials will lead the SJCA in cutting the ribbon on its new offices, while Ben Ott, president of the Hammonton Revitalization Corporation, will accept a $1,000 check for Main Street Hammonton. The gift helps to kick off Main Street Hammonton's fundraising campaign for a piazza that would be used for its new NJ Fringe Festival and arts activities year-round, especially on Third Thursdays.

"The officials and people of Hammonton and Stockton University have been gracious hosts. We look forward to working together to improve the quality of life of southern New Jersey through art, history and culture," said Tim Hart, president of the SJCA Board of Trustees. "Our relationship with Stockton University is key to the sustainable future of SJCA."

"Having SJCA located within Kramer Hall provides us with boundless opportunities to collaborate with Stockton faculty and students, as well as the diverse group of community partners we have cultivated throughout the Town of Hammonton," said Eileen Conran-Folks, director.

"We hope to create a partnership with SJCA which will allow us to expand our lecture series and seminars related to the arts. In addition, we hope to create internships for our students studying in the Arts and Humanities," she added. Stockton faculty and staff will be able to participate in workshops and other seminars that SJCA sponsors to celebrate South Jersey's arts and culture.

Kramer Hall also serves as the Hammonton site for the South Jersey Culture & History Center at Stockton University, (SJCHC) led by Director Tom Kinsella, a Stockton professor.

Teaching American Literature in Greece Shows Power of Collaborating Across Cultures Stockton Associate Professor Kristin Jacobson Is First Faculty Member To Participate in Exchange with Aristotle University

Galloway, N.J. - Kristin Jacobson, associate professor of Literature at Stockton University, this summer has been teaching American literature to students at Aristotle University, one of the largest universities in Greece’s public system of higher education.

“It’s important to think about American culture in a global context - that’s the heart and soul of our graduate degree in American studies,” she said. “Stockton has a commitment to global education, which is needed because our culture doesn’t exist in isolation.”

Jacobson, the first Stockton faculty member to participate in an ongoing exchange program with Aristotle University, spent two weeks teaching undergraduate classes and meeting with graduate students and faculty. She also gave public lectures on adventure and the environment, feminist teaching methods and technology, and creative thinking and writing with a focus on the American wilderness. About 80,000 students attend the university in Thessaloniki.

She gave the students “an opportunity to grapple with an American poet making a claim about Greek culture,” by discussing the poem “Helen,” by Hilda Doolittle, a writer of the early 20th Century known as “H.D.”

The writer states that “All Greece hates’ Helen of Troy,” a jumping off point for the students to discuss H.D.’s intent and “how it makes them feel.”

"Is she using Greece as a way to represent a difficult idea, about patriarchal cultures and Western thinking?" Jacobson inquired.

Students uncovered a range of interpretations for how the poem interpreted Greek and American cultures and their views on beauty, women's roles in politics, and whether or not Western thinking about these topics has changed since H.D. wrote the poem.

Jacobson's role was to begin the exchange of faculty and help to grow the program, which is intended to "find ways for our students to communicate with their students, through virtual and/or real exchanges," she said. "Students at both institutions may work on a project together via the internet," she added.

Tatiani Rapatzikou, an assistant professor in the Department of American Literature and Culture in the School of English at Aristotle University, will visit Stockton in October to give a public lecture and teach several classes, including a graduate American Studies class with Deborah Gussman, professor of American Literature.

In addition to teaching, Jacobson had the opportunity to learn more about the daily lives of Greek citizens enduring economic and societal upheaval.

"Greece is really in a crucial time with the refugee crisis, the future of the European Union, and the significant economic austerity measures they are grappling with," she said. "Taxes were raised on coffee and other daily essentials - almost everything you purchased was being taxed."

There are hiring freezes in many fields, including at universities and hospitals, she said. "I saw protests and students participating in democracy, including student elections, which are taken so seriously that the university does not hold classes then, to enable everyone to vote."

The port city of Thessaloniki is a beautiful juxtaposition of modern infrastructure set amidst Byzantine architecture.

"There's a very modern café with an archeological dig going on by the side of the road," she said. "In trying to build the metro, they found artifacts from the ancient road, which are being researched, but which also delayed construction."

Her trip included visits to Thessaloniki's Roman forum and the White Tower, "an icon of the city on the waterfront dating to when Thessaloniki was a walled city occupied by the Turks," she said. She credited Rapatzikou and David Roessel, professor of Greek Languages and Literature, with initiating the exchange program, and thanked Deans Lisa Honaker of the School of Arts & Humanities and Rob Gregg of the School of General Studies for their support. "The hospitality of Aristotle University was amazing and the faculty and students were open and welcoming," she added.

Toms River Regional Schools Creates Title I Summer MakerCamp

District addresses summer learning loss with grant funding.

For some students, coming back to the classroom in September is as hard as readjusting to the early morning wakeup; it can take weeks to get back into the school mindset. Many families do not have the means to provide enriching opportunities for their children over the summer. The Toms River Regional School District is addressing this "summer learning loss" through a $100,000 New Jersey Department of Education innovateNJ grant targeting Title I schools.

According to Superintendent David Healy, the district has been in a curricular and mindset makeover over the past two years to address new state standards in technology, careers, and the core subject areas, and to bring more creative control back to teachers. "From kindergarten to 12th grade, lesson plans are shifting increasingly to hands on, problem-based learning, with real world applications and a wider variety of tools and materials," says Healy.

Last October, the district created the Jersey Shore Makerfest, which drew over 100 presenters and more than 4000 participants from all over the east coast. Starting in January, it partnered with Office Depot to create a $60,000 Innovation Station with high tech displays, furniture, and 3D printers. It went to a full day kindergarten model with multisensory learning centers at its core. And on NJ Makers Day in March, it played host to twelve districts from across the state, both live and virtually, in joint projects involving programming, cardboard constructions, and digital badging.

Says Healy, "In challenging financial times, in a district with almost 16,000 students and learning programs in 19 buildings, it can be difficult to implement initiatives across every school simultaneously. Finding grants that match our mission creates opportunities to research and test innovations in individual locations while having little impact on the budget." In the past year alone, the district has worked with nearly half a million dollars in grants, including awards from the Grunin Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the Department of Education.

The MakerCamp grant was written by Assistant Superintendent Marc Natanagara with support from district staff. "Our cross-disciplinary teacher team has pushed us to look at learning as an organic whole, rather than divided up into discrete periods of separate subjects. That's not how we approach problems in real life, and our educators are finding ways to use more holistic strategies in their classrooms."

The program runs for six weeks, Monday through Friday. Each week is thematic, includes a field trip, and focuses on one or more real world problems. The themes are: The Jersey Shore, Robotics, Art and Society, Weather and Climate, Food and Health, and Manufacturing and Design. Supervisor of Educational Technology Tiffany Lucey will be the site director. According to Lucey, "This program promotes career-ready and maker practices, with skills, concepts and projects spilling over from week to week so students have a sense of the interconnectedness of learning."

Says Natanagara, "What is unique about MakerCamp is its nearly complete departure from a traditional classroom model. The program allows time schedules and student groupings to vary as needed. Activities are designed to appeal to diverse interests, abilities, and age levels. There will be no lectures, slide shows, or desks in rows. Physical activity and mindfulness breaks occur with regular frequency. And each week culminates with students presenting a project that addresses a real world problem that they have worked on and gained knowledge of during the week."

Advisors from the schools and community have had input on the program design and will mentor students on their project prototypes. "Local artists, NAVAIR, Ocean County College, Scouts, the Toms River Chamber of Commerce, and many others have embraced the concepts and pledged support," according to Natanagara. "Our kids are going to have experiences in and with the community that they may never have had otherwise." For example, during the "Art and Society" week, students will practice visual, performing and digital arts techniques, tour downtown Toms River art works and galleries, and build individual creative pieces to share with the community.

Superintendent Healy concludes, "Innovation isn't just about putting technology in teacher and student hands. It's about getting them to engage in ways they haven't before using tools in new and creative ways. It's about connecting with the larger world."

New Jersey's red fox

TOMS RIVER – Vulpes Vulpes (Red Fox), a photography exhibit by Eric Sager, will be on exhibit in McConnell Gallery at the Toms River Branch of the Ocean County Library throughout the month of July.

Sager is a central New Jersey-based freelance photographer and artist. He studied Fine Arts and Film Photography at the University of the Arts in Philadelphia, PA. He primarily shoots weddings and other events, but in his free time he focuses on photographing wildlife in any New Jersey's many nature preserves.

This exhibit is a multi-year long journey in finding and photographing New Jersey's red fox. The portraits are printed on fine artist's watercolor paper, hand-mounted, matted and framed with reclaimed wood by Sager.

Sager says, "I wanted to give my audience the feeling of really being there with the foxes; to see the small, serene moments, to be down on the ground alongside them, to share a view of them otherwise unattainable."

The exhibit is free and open to the public. For more information, please contact the Toms River Branch of the Ocean County Library at 732-349-6200 or visit our website at www.theoceancountylibrary.org.

OCC ART GALLERY ANNOUNCES NEW SEASON OF EXHIBITS

TOMS RIVER – The Grunin Center Art Gallery (Building #12), Ocean County College Main Campus, College Drive, Toms River, NJ, is proud to announce its 2015-2016 Gallery Exhibit Schedule featuring local and national artists. Please use Parking Lot #2. Admission to the Gallery is free.

July 5 to August 28, 2016: Lynn Whitfield – A member of the Toms River Artists Community (TRAC), Whitfield is a sculptor and a poet, combining her poems with sculpture using her physical form as a guide. The sculptures, made of clear wrapping tape, feature the texts of her poems with a specially picked backdrop that carries the theme of the poem/sculpture.

August 30 to September 28, 2016 (Meet the Artist Reception, Sat, Sept 10, 6-8pm): “Wild Wood: Sculpture by Amy Puccio” – A self-taught artist, Puccio is a graduate of Kean University with a double major in biology and chemistry, working as a product development chemist for nine years and then briefly, as a portrait photographer. After becoming a stay-at-home mom, Puccio started working part-time as a picture framer, learning on the job. She began creating art with picture frame moulding scraps while working in frame shops and in a contemporary art gallery, building her first recycled-wood sculpture in 2006. Puccio works with a variety of subject matter including pop art and supersized works based on everyday objects including her “pet” subject – food!

October 2016: George Krause, Photographer – Krause’s photographs are in major museum collections including the Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, The Philadelphia Museum of Art, and the Bibliothèque Nationale in Paris. In 1993, he was honored as the Texas Artist of the Year. He recently retired from the University of Houston where he created the photography program.

November 2016: Lizzi Schippert – Focusing on classical techniques in printmaking (lithography and intaglio), figure and portrait drawing, collage, pochoir (a stencil technique), and painting, along with Japanese and Chinese calligraphy, Schippert has exhibited nationwide, from Manhattan to Hawaii, and in Sweden, Japan, and the Caribbean.

December 5 to December 22, 2016: Ann Hayes “Scene at the Shore” – A group show focusing on the landscape, landmarks, and features of the Jersey Shore featuring 11 artists exhibiting in diverse media. Hayes often works in watercolor, oil, and Giclée.

January 2017: Tony Ventura & Tina Adamitis – Exhibit information forthcoming.

February 2017: Frank McGinley, Painter/Art Historian – Painting most of his life, McGinley received his first award at the age of 13 in a contest held by New York City for students preparing to enter high school. McGinley’s painting depicted the Battle of Wake Island where U.S. Marines were defeated in 1942. The painting is in the archives of the New York Metropolitan Museum of History.

McGinley was accepted as an independent artist into the U. S. Air Force Art Program and his work is hanging in the Pentagon, Washington, D.C. Two of his Air Force paintings were part of the book U.S. Air Force 60th Anniversary Complete History. McGinley has permanent displays at West Point Military Academy, the U. S. Coast Guard Station (Atlantic City), Notre Dame University, and the British War Museum (London, England), just to name a few. He also presented signed lithographs to President Ronald Reagan and Queen Elizabeth. McGinley’s illustrated covers for a set of books covering the Holocaust (CIS Publishing Co., Lakewood) are in the Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C.

PRESS RELEASE

Waretown branch Library Month of August New York City Unfiltered – Sheldon Nadelman

Although Sheldon Nadelman’s subjects were often overlooked, as well as, stepped over, his photographs often got much attention. An acclaimed book, Terminal Bar – A Photographic Record of New York’s Most Notorious Watering Hole and a Sundance award winning short film documentary award, The Terminal Bar, have both resulted from his works. Even Martin Scorsese used the Terminal Bar in his film, Taxi Driver.

From Nadelman’s vantage point as a bartender at the Terminal Bar at the corner of Eighth Avenue and West 41st. Street, he shot 2600 photographs with his $85 Pentax. His works have been the subject of a New York Times article, whose headquarters, ironically, now stands on the former site of the bar. Taken from 1962 until 1981, his photographs have long been recognized as historically significant.

Along with the “sooty, sticky-floored life” images taken off the streets in front of the Terminal Bar, Nadelman is also displaying sensitive images of the World Trade Center, pre-9/11.

A reception will be held at the Waretown Branch Library on Monday, August 8 at 7:30 pm and it is open to the public. These programs are free and open to the public.

Danish Resistance to Nazis and Lessons for Today Are Lecture Topics at Stockton's Manahawkin Site

Galloway, N.J. - The courage of Danish citizens in resisting the Nazis and helping to save Jews fleeing the Holocaust will be highlighted in a lecture, "How to Remember? The Holocaust in a Righteous Country," at Stockton University's Manahawkin Instructional Site on Tuesday, Aug. 9, at 10 a.m.

Gail Hirsch Rosenthal, director of The Sara and Sam Schoffer Holocaust Resource Center at Stockton, and Michael Hayse, associate professor of Historical Studies, will share their insights and photographs from a recent trip to Denmark, including a village where Jews left by small fishing boats for Sweden. They will discuss how the lessons to be learned from Denmark during World War II apply today.

The public is invited to this free event at the university's instructional site, 712 E. Bay Ave. in Manahawkin, N.J. Light refreshments provided.
