Berkeley D.A.R.E.

By JoAnn LaRusso

Music echoed throughout Veteran's Park, Bayville, Sunday, at the Annual D.A.R.E. Car Show. Children played, vendors offered an array of food. The Bayville First Aid Squad, and Berkeley Twp. Boy Scout Troop 76, was there with the scouts enjoying a picnic lunch, and many township officials were there.

Officer Scott Selby, who has helped to organize the festival for several years, manned the D.A.R.E. Booth that was filled with information and souvenirs about the program. Fun was to be had everywhere as custom cars were on display, their owners basking in the sun or sitting under the many trees in Veterans Park.

But as Berkeley Mayor Carmen Amato said, "D.A.R.E. is more than fun and games. D.A.R.E., instituted in 1983, is a comprehensive K-12 education program taught in

Free Ice cream for Children

The Toms River Police Department will be running its third annual "Operation Brain Freeze" to promote compliance with helmet laws in an attempt to prevent traumatic brain injuries. Police spokesman Ralph Stocco says that this year's campaign is set to begin Wednesday June 22nd and will run through September 4th 2016. Last year we had 40 Officers participate, handing out over 300 vouchers for free ice cream. Stocco says that this year we hope to issue 500 vouchers. The participating ice cream shops on the barrier island and beach area are Summer Sweets and Barnacle Bills. Participating shops in the mainland area of the township are Yellow Brick Road Carousel, Mrs. Walkers, Rita's, Dairy Queen, and Denae's Sweet Shop.

While on patrol, if an officer observes a child riding a bicycle,

Dump Truck Crash on Route 539 Snaps Utility Pole, Causes Downed Wires

Manchester Township—The driver of a dump truck that struck a utility pole Wednesday morning, causing live electrical wires to fall on his vehicle, escaped without injury after a nearby Manchester Township Police officer provided emergency instruction through his vehicle's public address system. At about 8:45 a.m., Ptl. Rich Chevrier was driving northbound on Route 539 and was about 500 feet from a Lakehurst Public Works dump truck, which was traveling southbound, when he noticed sparks as it left the roadway and struck a utility pole. Ptl. Chevrier immediately stopped his patrol vehicle and used his public address system to instruct the driver of the dump truck to remain inside of his vehicle, as contact with fallen live wires could be fatal. The driver complied and waited for a nearby JCP&L crew to arrive and cut power before safely exiting the vehicle. The driver of the dump truck, Jason Emme, 25, of Bayville, was not injured in the crash. Mr. Emme advised investigating officers that a red SUV had made an unsafe left turn from Cherry Street on to Route 539 southbound causing him to brake and swerve to avoid a collision. These evasive actions caused him to leave the roadway and strike the utility pole. The driver of the SUV, which is believed to be a red Jeep Cherokee or Liberty, did not stop following the crash. Police ask that anyone who may have information regarding this vehicle to please call 732-657-6111. A photo of the vehicle is attached.

"The quick thinking of Ptl. Chevrier to use his vehicle's PA system to warn Mr. Emme to stay inside of his truck was lifesaving," said Sgt. Charles Brooks. "Residents are reminded to always avoid downed wires, as they could be electrified and extremely dangerous. Alert authorities and never attempt to touch, move, or drive over any wires."

CHINESE RECYCLERS VISIT OCEAN COUNTY'S RECYCLING FACILITY

LAKEWOOD – The 7,200 mile separation didn't change the common goal between the staff that implements Ocean County's recycling efforts and that of the China Resource Recycling Association.

"We want to learn about your recycling programs and how we can do the best recycling job possible in China," said Tang Yanju, Business Division Manager for the Association, through an interpreter.

Yanju with a group of about 20 association members visited the Ocean County Northern Recycling Center off New Hampshire Avenue, here, on June 21. It was the first leg of their U.S. market research.

"We are very proud of the work that is done here especially because it helps our environment," said Ocean County Freeholder Gerry P. Little, who serves as liaison to Ocean County's award winning recycling program. "We deeply appreciate your interest in visiting our center and we are very happy we share this common interest."

Following a brief welcome and overview at the recycling facility's education center, the group was given a tour of the county's materials processing facility, led by Ernest Kuhlwein, who is director of the Ocean County Department of Solid Waste Management and Matt Cole, recycling plant manager from Waste Management.

Kuhlwein along with Little explained how the county's recycling program operates with an eye toward cost effectiveness and efficiencies that make the program easy for residents to participate.

"Last year, this recycling processing facility processed 80,000 tons of materials from our 33 municipalities," Little explained. "We accept single-stream recyclables which includes cardboard, newspaper, mixed paper, plastic bottles, aluminum cans and steel cans.

"Recyclables processed at the facility in Lakewood are marketed both domestically here in the United States and internationally," he said. China is one of the biggest markets for paper and cardboard from Ocean County.

The association members were given a up close view of how the machinery at the facility works and how the materials are made ready for market.

In 2010, Ocean County moved to single-stream recycling allowing all recyclables to be placed at the curb in one container. The materials processing facility was renovated and retrofitted to mechanically sort the recyclables brought into the facility.

While the County owns the facility it is operated by Waste Management, a private contractor. "Single stream recycling increased efficiencies especially for the large towns that were already using robo-trucks for trash collection," Kuhlwein said. "Single stream recycling is picked up like daily trash and that makes the process more efficient."

Little explained Ocean County returns a portion of the revenue it receives from marketing the recyclable to its municipalities which also offsets the cost of the recycling operations.

"Our recycling operations help save landfill space which also comes with a financial savings benefit for our municipalities," Little said.

Association Business Manager Yanju said the visit to Ocean County's recycling center will help in the collection of information and research that the association members will bring back to China.

"This will give China positive help," she said. The group also will visit Washington, Los Angeles and other areas to gather a comprehensive view of solid waste removal in the United States.

"We welcome the opportunity to share our knowledge and program information with the members of the Association from China," Little said. "Recycling and proper solid waste disposal comes with economic and environmental benefits wherever, in this world, you might live."

Ernest Kuhlwein, Director of the Ocean County Department of Solid Waste Management, and Ocean County Freeholder Gerry P. Little, (center) liaison to the Department of Solid Waste Management talk with Tang Yanju, Business Division Manager for the China Resource Association at the Ocean County Northern Recycling Center during a visit of Association members on June 21.

ARIES: 21st March & 20th April
A sudden realization or idea can come to you, especially with anything you have been thinking over since mid June. Any sense of being limited by someone else's needs or desires will now begin to turn around. Up to mid July, you need to focus on things you want to put into place, perhaps now with a different perspective.

TAURUS: 21st April & 20th May
Someone else's situation can begin to move forward and this could take some pressure or expectation off you financially. You should focus on what you really want from life in the immediate term and let the long term go for the moment. A good starting point is to think about developing priorities that bring happiness.

GEMINI: 21st May & 20th June
You will need to think about your finances to mid July by realizing this could bring a sudden change of personal plans this week. Not avoiding detail of some description with daily routines needs to be accepted and you could begin to find this easier. The opportunity for a bargain is likely but be sure you are spending wisely.

CANCER: 21st June & 22nd July
You could be in for a surprise that will lead you to thinking quite differently about your personal situation up to mid July with Mercury moving into your sign. There is much to enjoy and any attention from somebody else has a strong element of intensity about it. You should look at ways of coping with obligations effectively.

LEO: 23rd July & 22nd August
There can be a turning point with anything you intended to put into place early in the year that hasn't quite worked out yet. It would be wise to contemplate to mid July, mainly because you may become aware of something different that could be beneficial. Part of this could be deciding things for yourself rather than responding.

VIRGO: 23rd August & 22nd September
Don't ignore any inventive suggestions that come your way to deal with obligations more effectively. It could lead to a completely different view of your priorities to mid July. What can drive this at the moment is a desire to be able to enjoy yourself more and the opportunity is there. Looking at how other people do it could help.

LIBRA: 23rd September & 22nd October
Financial matters that haven't been completely settled since early in the year will now have more forward movement to early August. The opportunity to set new goals could suddenly present itself this week. It will require serious attention up to mid July, when it comes to commitments attached. You could enjoy it all though.

SCORPIO: 23rd October & 21st November
Your new 2-year cycle that in some ways had a false start early in the year will take shape from now to early August. Hopefully you have not given up on yourself, though you may have developed a changed view of what should be uppermost to aim for in the long term. Those you can rely on will have become evident as well.

SAGITTARIUS: 22nd November & 21st December
You cannot escape a certain level of feeling held back or perhaps kept in the dark about something. It is turning around though, but this may not be entirely evident. What someone has to say could surprise you this week and then they could become secretive to mid July. You can only rely on those who are openly supportive.

CAPRICORN: 22nd December & 19th January
There is much to involve you with other people. You could also discover, quite surprisingly, that someone approves of you more than you realized. You will have clear vision of those you want to be involved with into the future as well as any person you feel is better to cut ties with. Involvement with a friend moves forward.

AQUARIUS: 20th January & 18th February
Commitments you thought you were clear about early in the year that have drifted or gone nowhere will now have a turn around. You can move forward on this score, once and for all, from now to early August. There is a lot of detail you need to either get right or pay attention to up to mid July. This could involve entitlements.

PISCES: 19th February & 20th March
You could feel lucky this week, which could include being very appreciative of what you have in life as well as future opportunities open to you. There is someone who is willing to help you. You could also feel more definite, even stronger, about your ability to set goals and move towards them. There is definitely a turnaround.

LEAVE THE FIREWORKS TO THE PROFESSIONALS THIS JULY 4TH WEEKEND

IT's ALMOST Independence Day and that means the thundering explosions of fireworks will soon fill the air.

As the United States prepares to mark its 240th birthday on July 4th, the Ocean County Board of Chosen Freeholders wants to make sure everyone enjoys a safe and happy holiday by leaving the fireworks to the professionals.

"Despite the warnings issued every year we still hear reports of people being injured by illegal fireworks," said Freeholder Director John P. Kelly. "With so many professional fireworks shows scheduled around the county for the long weekend, there's no reason anyone should risk setting off illegal fireworks."

Possession of fireworks by anyone but a licensed professional is a disorderly persons offense, but possession with the intent to sell is a fourth-degree offense, with a possible maximum penalty of 18 months imprisonment and fines up to $10,000.

Unfortunately, many types of fireworks can be easily purchased in other states, including neighboring Pennsylvania.

"Do not travel out of state and buy fireworks," said Kelly, who is also Director of Law and Public Safety. "It may be legal to buy them, but it is illegal to bring them back across state lines and use them in New Jersey."

Kelly said local police departments will be on the lookout for illegal fireworks in the days and leading up to July 4th.

Fireworks are a danger both to users and those who may be close by, said Freeholder Virginia E. Haines.

"When you light that fuse, you never know what is going to happen," Haines said. "A rocket can fly out of control and strike a child or land on a roof and start a fire."

According to federal statistics, fireworks injure nearly 10,000 people every year throughout the United States. The vast majority of those injuries occur during the two weeks leading up to and following July 4th.

Fireworks-related injuries can range from severe burns to even disfigurement.

"We've seen reports across the country of people who have blown off their fingers or suffered disfiguring injuries because the seemingly harmless firecracker they were holding suddenly exploded in their hand or near their face," said Freeholder Gerry P. Little, liaison to the Ocean County Health Department.

Freeholder Joseph H. Vicari, liaison to tourism, said there will be numerous opportunities to enjoy fireworks safely this Independence Day.

"Many of our towns will be hosting shows throughout the weekend," Vicari said.

A listing of professional fireworks displays is posted on the county's tourism website at www.oceancountytourism.com.

Even if you do decide to attend a professional show, Vicari had one final word of warning: leave the pets at home.

"Many dogs and other animals are terrified of the loud noises made by fireworks," he said.

Sheldon

Sheldon is a 5 yr old hound mix. He is very playful and has a lot of energy for a 5 yr old. He would do best with an active family that can run around with him all day. He would benefit greatly from obedience has his leash manners need a little work. He is also very strong even though he doesn't look it. He likes most other dogs but would prefer a home without cats. SO, if you're looking for an active pup please considering opening your hearts and home to Sheldon! Kids 10+

Ollie

Ollie was adopted from us as a kitten, but returned in June after his owner developed allergies. An adorable black and white tuxedo cat, one-year-old Ollie will do just about anything to get your attention. He's not too fond of life in a cage, so he likes to toss his toys around until he's created a bit of chaos and then holler at you until you let him out. Once he's out and about, though, he's a most charming fellow who loves to have his cheeks scratched and get as much petting as he can handle. He's an active guy, who likes to chase the laser light and jump at a string toy. He's fine with other cats as long as they're not too aggressive, and he's used to being with kids as well. Recently, he developed a pretty bad urinary tract infection, so we have him on a special diet and he's doing just fine again. He will need to eat special food for life to stay healthy and at his best, but we think he's well worth the trouble. Please come in and meet this handsome little character soon. You'll be very glad you did!

skateboard, roller blades, or scooter while correctly wearing a safety helmet, the officer will approach them and talk to the kids as they stress the importance of them wearing their helmets. As an incentive the children will then be provided with a voucher to one of the local businesses that entitle them to on free ice cream. For safety reasons only officers in uniform and driving marked police cars will be participating.

This was such a positive event the last two years. We wanted to expand it in 2016 in order to reach as many children as possible. According to Stocco, last year saw children riding around their neighborhoods looking for police cars that would observe them obeying the law so they could talk to the officers, and of course, get some free ice cream. Chief Mitchell Little says that "it is such a joy to be able to interact with the children and have them see the officers in a positive light. We are trying to build lifelong relationships with them. We thank our sponsors who are donating the ice cream. Without them this event would not be possible."

DARE curricula address drugs, violence, bullying, internet safety, and other high risk circumstances that are too often part of student's lives.

"The DARE program teaches the spirit of camaraderie," said Amato. "Dare to Kare."

The Drug Abuse Resistance Education program is taught throughout Berkeley Township School District and the Central Regional Middle School, where Police officers go into the schools for classes on how kids can, and should deal with these subjects. They are taught what drugs are, what they can do, and what they look like, in the event that parents, siblings or friends are using.

Also on hand at the event, Berkeley Police Chief Karin DiMichele, says, "Much of our police work depends on the co-operation of our citizens. Community involvement is a priority. The men and women of Berkeley Township Police Department are here for you, and continue to serve our great community."

"DARE's primary mission is to provide children with information and skills they may need," said the mayor. "Its goal is to teach kids the tools they need to avoid negative influences, and instead make good decisions for themselves."

FREEHOLDERS AGAIN PUSH FOR REFUNDS AS THE MLB ALL-STAR BREAK APPROACHES AND THE YANKEES ARE STILL DARK ON COMCAST

WITH THE Major League Baseball season nearly half over and still no progress being made to return Yankees games and the YES Network to Comcast, the Ocean County Board of Chosen Freeholders is again calling on the cable company to issue refunds in return for keeping the channel black.

"This has gone on long enough. Comcast needs to credit each customer's bill for the lack of the YES Network," said Freeholder Joseph H. Vicari. "Subscribers are still paying Comcast for the channel but getting nothing in return."

County Department of Consumer Affairs, pointed to published reports saying the YES Network charges Comcast $5.36 per month per subscriber to carry the channel.

"By not paying the fee, Comcast is saving more than $4.8 million per month, or more than $33.6 million since they took the channel off the air last November. That money needs to be returned to subscribers," Vicari said.

Freeholder Gerry P. Little agreed, saying sports fans are caught in the stalemate between the two corporations.

"Comcast is pocketing this money. They are charging for a service that they are not providing," Vicari said.

Vicari, who is also liaison to the Ocean

Freeholder Virginia E. Haines said not only have Yankees fans had to suffer through half a season without watching their favorite team, but they are paying for the privilege of not seeing the games.

"Either reach an agreement with the YES Network or credit customers for the months already lost," Haines said.

The Freeholders penned another letter to the state Board of Public Utilities asking the board to take any action it can to either resolve the dispute or require Comcast to issue customer credits.

loud and clear, they want the YES Network, they want Yankees games," the Freeholders said in the letter. "If the games aren't broadcasted, we demand Comcast issue a credit to each and every one of its customers."

Little said he's heard even more complaints since the summer tourism season began and New York residents have come to their vacation homes and realized they can't watch the games.

"Watching sports is a quality of life issue," Little said. "Both our full-time residents and our seasonal visitors want to see the games."

This is not the first time the Freeholders have demanded that Comcast and the YES Network settle their differences.

The Freeholders called for the two sides to settle their differences back in the first days of spring training. They also made an early plea to the BPU to intervene and passed a formal resolution in April calling on both sides to reach an agreement.

The resolution also asked that Comcast issue a customer refund for the loss the of the sports channel.

Sherry grew up in her father's darkroom and is otherwise a self taught photographer. In 2011 after being laid off from PATCH.com she embarked on a project to help raise awareness about homelessness throughout the Country. She did a Google search and discovered "Tent City", in Lakewood, NJ. She spent 4 years documenting inside "Tent City", the largest homeless encampment on the Northeast coast that was bulldozed in July of 2014 after a rigorous court battle. This exhibit will showcase a few images from her time spent there. She hopes to continue to raise awareness through her exhibition about the homeless and housing crisis facing our State, primarily, Ocean County, which still does not have a homeless shelter in place.

FROM THE DESK OF MAYOR KENNETH T. PALMER JUNE 20, 2016 HERITAGE MINERALS PLANS CONTINUE TO EVOLVE

As you know, Manchester Township has been exploring development alternatives on the Heritage Mineral Tract. Recently, the Township Council passed Ordinance 16-022, approving a Redevelopment Plan that conceptualized a "Town Center" project. I supported the Council's decision to approve the concept because I believe the manner in which the Heritage Minerals Tract is developed is the single most important issue affecting Manchester Township's economic future. However, as I have repeatedly and publicly stated, neither I nor the Town Council were in favor of 6,543 units. That much development would never be in Manchester's best interests. We agreed to the Redevelopment Plan in order to start the process of vetting out a possible plan that was "right" for Manchester Township.

As promised, since the Council's approval of the Redevelopment Plan, we have sought input from the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). They have indicated development beyond the 2004 settlement agreement's 1,000 acre "footprint" would be extremely difficult given the various environmental issues, permit requirements, and effects on threatened and endangered species. Hearing the DEP's concerns and those of our residents, I, along with the Town Council, have decided to withdraw the plan. As such, earlier this morning I vetoed Ordinance 16-022.

Please note, we still believe Manchester needs to re-consider the 2004 settlement agreement and the manner in which the Heritage Minerals Tract is developed. Currently, pursuant to the 2004 settlement agreement, Hovsons can develop a senior community of 2,400 homes without any input from the township (aside from the customary Planning Board approvals). While such a development would financially help the township in the short term, adding that many senior homes could realistically further tilt the state school funding formula against Manchester to becoming a 'No-Aid' district. While we only receive 14 percent of our school budget from the State, it does amount to approximately 8 million dollars. Therefore, I, along with the Council, will continue to explore concepts with Hovsons that will not affect the 2004 settlement "footprint" but does work in Manchester Township's best interests.

VETERINARY ASSISTANT PROGRAM AT OCEAN COUNTY COLLEGE RECEIVES NATIONAL APPROVAL FROM NAVTA

TOMS RIVER – Ocean County College's Veterinary Assistant program, run through the College's Department of Continuing and Professional Education, recently received national approval from NAVTA (National Association of Veterinary Technicians in America). The approval runs through June 30, 2018.

To better define the veterinary health care team and the role of the credentialed technician, NAVTA created a veterinary assistant approval program in 2010. Schools with a veterinary assistant program are encouraged to review the NAVTA Veterinary Assistant Programs Policy when creating their curriculum and submit their program for NAVTA approval. Once approved, graduates will be given the opportunity to take the National Approved Veterinary Assistant Exam. With successful completion of the exam, individuals will become an Approved Veterinary Assistant (AVA) and be recognized for their accomplishment with the AVA designation.

Ocean County College's Veterinary Assistant program covers office procedures and client relations, pharmacy, preventative healthcare, behavior and restraint, animal nursing, laboratory procedures, surgical and recovery room assistance, radiology, and emergency response.

Successful graduates of this program will receive an Ocean County College Certificate of Completion and will be eligible to sit for the National Approved Veterinary Assistant Exam by NAVTA. Program graduates who completed training within the previous 12 months (since June 2015) will also be eligible to sit for the national examination.

For more information, call the OCC Department of Continuing and Professional Education at 732-255-0409, email cpeinfo@ocean.edu, or visit www.ocean.edu.

SCHOLARSHIP CELEBRATION RAISES OVER $225,000 TO SUPPORT STUDENTS AT OCEAN COUNTY COLLEGE!

TOMS RIVER, NJ – The Ocean County College Foundation netted over $225,000 at its 2016 Annual Scholarship Celebration on June 11. The annual event was held in the new Jon and Judith Larson Student Center on the OCC Main Campus in Toms River. Scholarship Celebration proceeds will benefit the students of Ocean County College.

This year, the OCC Foundation honored Investors Bank and Richard Spengler, Executive Vice President & Chief Lending Officer, with the Humanitarian of the Year Award. Investors Bank was also the evening's major sponsor.

"Sincere appreciation is expressed to Investors Bank for its role in ensuring the success of our Scholarship Celebration. We are so thankful for their commitment to education and philanthropy, not only in Ocean County but throughout their service area. I'd like to also express my gratitude to the many other donors and supporters of this event who allow us to continue to enrich the lives of our students," said Heather S. Barberi, Executive Director of the OCC Foundation.

"We are proud to acknowledge Investors Bank and Mr. Spengler with this year's Humanitarian of the Year Award," continued Barberi. "Investors Bank has been an incredible and longstanding supporter of the Ocean County College Foundation, and more specifically our annual Scholarship Celebration. Investors Bank recognizes the importance of giving back to the areas that they serve."

According to Barberi, Investors Bank has a longstanding history of supporting students and programs at Ocean County College. Recently, the Investors Bank Foundation provided critical funding to launch the first initiative of Ocean County College's STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) Academy. This program increases access and engagement for local K-12 students and teachers in innovative, hands-on educational activities to strengthen interest in the STEM fields and grow the talent pipeline to meet the increasing demand for a qualified STEM workforce in New Jersey.

Spengler is involved in countless charities and dedicates his time and talents to a number of organizations in New Jersey. He has served as a Board of Director of New Jersey Thrift Institutions Community Investment Corporation. Currently, Spengler serves on the Board of the Rutgers Center for Real Estate, and on the Foundation Boards of Monmouth Medical Center, Count Basie Theater and Holiday Express. He also supports Collier Youth Services and the Foundation to Save the Jersey Shore.

The evening's festivities included a gourmet buffet, live entertainment, dancing, and a silent auction. With nearly 250 people in attendance, guests enjoyed live music provided by The ASAP Band. Food, for the seventh consecutive year, was prepared by Kessler's Catering. Individuals and businesses lent support by purchasing tickets, becoming sponsors, or donating auction items.

The Scholarship Celebration was co-chaired by Victoria J. Magliacane (Toms River), Investors Bank Senior Vice President and a member of the OCC Foundation Board of Trustees, along with Kenneth J. Malagiere (Toms River), owner of Narcissus Florals and Vice Chair of the OCC Foundation Board of Trustees.

The Ocean County College Foundation is a private nonprofit organization dedicated to the growth and development of the College through scholarships, endowments, and capital and special projects.

Nature Trail

In partnership with Long Beach
Island Foundation of the Arts and Sciences (LBIF), Conserve Wildlife Foundation of
New Jersey (CWF) will assist with the design and enhancement of a nature trail at LBIF.

The surrounding habitat at LBIF consists mainly of undeveloped tidal saltmarsh and coastal maritime forest habitat (approximately 21 acres) which is the largest privately owned parcel of open space on Long Beach Island. The main objective for this unique grassroots effort is to engage and educate local residents and visitors about the importance of any remaining habitat on Long Beach Island, a largely developed barrier island.

It is also to provide the public with knowledge and resources to help provide suitable habitat (food, water, cover) to wildlife, especially migratory songbirds and pollinator species of insects.

Lastly, it will create a wealth of educational opportunities for visitors through the creation and installation of interpretive signs, a map, and brochure.

Project Objective:

Create a unique, self-guided nature trail for visitors to LBIF that focuses on reducing non-native, invasive species, planting native flowering trees, shrubs, and herbaceous plants and increasing educational opportunities with the summer
Nature Studies and Marine Science camps.

GET READY FOR WEEK 3 OF NATIONAL SAFETY MONTH WATCH OUT FOR DANGERS

"Week 3 of National Safety Month focuses on watching out for dangers," said Ocean County Freeholder Deputy Director Gerry P. Little, Liaison to the Ocean County Board of Health. "Remember, being safe means being alert. Even in surroundings that are familiar to us, we need to always be looking for dangers around us throughout our day. Keeping an eye out for hazards can help you identify and avoid them before an injury occurs."

Daniel Regenye, Ocean County Health Department (OCHD) Public Health Coordinator, stated it is important to take steps to assure your safety. He said, "Watching where you are going or walking is high on the list. Distracted walking is on the rise for people of all ages. Doctors and safety experts are increasingly concerned about the risk associated with distraction while walking. People are busy responding to or sending text messages, talking on cell phones, or using some type of mobile device with headphones to listen to music while walking. Preoccupied and distracted pedestrians have become a common site everywhere. With so many things competing for our attention, safety needs to be a priority. Results of these distractions can be injury or death."

Regenye added:

- Check your emails and send your texts before you start walking
- Duck into a doorway or move off to the side of the walkway to make a call, send a text or answer emails
- Never cross the street while using an electronic device and make sure you can hear traffic and sounds around you
- Scan ahead for cracks in the ground, spill or changes in elevation

...The nature trail that is being created is being made by carefully selecting and removing some woody and non-woody vegetation within a "berm" that is along the wetland edge of the property. The trail will start at the back of the Marine Science Building and continue parallel with the buildings towards the northeast. Before reaching Sandy Lane a side path (Pollinator Path) will lead to beehives and a turtle garden. After the "Pollinator Path" reconnects with the main trail then it will go northwest within the wooded (roadside) edge along Sandy Lane. From there it will connect with the existing saltmarsh trail on the Joe Torg Wetlands.

The majority of the work will be to control non-native, invasive species, such as Common reed (Phragmites australis), Autumn olive (Elaeagnus umbellata), and harmful ones like poison ivy (Toxicodendron radicans) at LBIF. The project kicked off on November 20 with our first Volunteer Work Day. Over 50 enthusiastic volunteers came out to help us blaze the new trail and plant nature trees, shrubs, and grasses in the old trail. Brush that was cleared during the work day was chipped up by the New Jersey tree service professionals at Pine Barrens Tree.

The second work day was held on Monday, January 18th. At that event students from the Marine Academy of Technology and Environmental Science (MATES) volunteered during the Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service as part of Stockton University's Day of Service to commemorate Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

The students joined Ben Wurst, CWF Habitat Program Manager to help continue work on the new nature trail. The students worked hard to clean up brush and spread wood chips in the cold blustery winds. The remaining reeds were properly disposed of by CWF.

Currently we are working hard to draft content for all of the interpretive signs which we hope to have installed by Summer 2016.

Stockton Professor to Serve as Shore-Based Scientist During NOAA's Marianas Trench Deep Sea Expedition

NOAA to Livestream Footage from Remotely Operated Vehicle with Scientific Commentary by Tara Luke and Others June 17—July 10

Galloway, NJ – From behind her computer screen, Tara Luke, associate professor of Biology, will dive deep into the dark, frigid waters of the western Pacific Ocean to help identify marine life, possibly some new species. Luke is a shore-based scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA) exploration of the deepest place on the planet, the Marianas Trench, from the research vessel Okeanos Explorer.

Luke is part of a team of scientists contributing live commentary on the expedition while viewing footage from NOAA's remotely operated vehicle known as the Deep Discoverer daily for 8-10 hours from Friday, June 17 to Sunday, July 10, beginning at 5 p.m. ET. An online livestream will be available worldwide at <http://oceanexplorer.noaa.gov> for anyone to explore the deep sea along with the scientists.

June 17 marks the start of the expedition's third phase. During phase two, scientists used sonar to map areas of the trench to identify geographic features of interest such as basins, craters and seamounts (underwater mountains) that may attract colonies of sea life. Luke was an on-shore scientist during phase one and said that "the most exciting part was discovering a hydrothermal vent that had never been seen before."

Chemosynthetic organisms that use chemicals instead of sunlight to create their food inhabit regions with hydrothermal vents.

Previously, Luke participated as a shore-based scientist for a NOAA expedition off the Atlantic Ocean in 2014 that looked at submarine canyons along the New England seamount chain. As a post-doctoral researcher, she dove 2,512 meters below the ocean in Alvin, the U.S. Navy's manned deep-ocean research submersible that has been operated by Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution for more than half a century.

"I loved being able to go out to sea to see these places," she said, and with NOAA's marine technology she is able to continue exploring these places from Stockton University.

Locally, Luke studies artificial reefs that attract colonies of coral, mussels and fish such as tautog and sea bass. She looks at the genetic diversity of corals and microorganisms to predict their ability to withstand change. "Knowing what's out there and being able to identify species helps us document biodiversity," she explained.

Stockton's Student Outcomes Symposium Shares Best Practices to Improve Services

Galloway, NJ – More than 200 higher education leaders convened to share best practices at the Student Outcomes Symposium, hosted by the William J. Hughes Center for Public Policy at Stockton University on June 15. The symposium explored students' academic success, workforce preparation and civic participation, and was attended by career counselors, academic advisers, admissions counselors and employers from 32 colleges and universities.

"Students come first at Stockton University. Giving our students the skills and abilities needed to learn for a lifetime and to start successful careers is at the heart of the missions of our colleges and universities," Kesselman continued, outlining the broad purpose of the symposium. "This is the means by which we build a more prosperous and civil New Jersey. Only truly educated citizens can protect our special American sense of opportunity, liberty and equality."

Kesselman was joined on a leadership panel with David Payne, vice president and chief operating officer of Educational Testing Service Global Education Division, and Hasani C. Carter, who currently serves as the state director of the New Jersey Educational Opportunity Fund (EOF) within the Office of the Secretary of Higher Education.

David Payne focused on student outcomes from a global perspective and about how we measure them and for what purposes. He stressed ongoing efforts to measure outcomes in a meaningful way for students, educators and employers, and growing interest in evidence-based assessment of civic learning.

Carter outlined the College Success Collaborative, an initiative of Secretary of Higher Education Rochelle Hendricks which involves pre-tertiary, higher education and community-based organizations. The initiative also researches the broad set of skills needed to succeed beyond college and the workplace, such as tolerance for others and global awareness.

Darryl Greer, a Senior Fellow of the Hughes Center's Higher Education and Strategic Information and Governance (HESIG) project, presented research on student attitudes toward college value and on counseling and advising services.

The HESIG research reveals recent college graduates believe the most important college outcome is "to get a better job," with 30 percent naming that as their top priority. One in three students says colleges are doing "extremely well" in preparing them for a job and career.

Daniel J. Douglas, Director of the Hughes Center, pointed to the research where students did not think civic participation was important to employers. However, a 2015 survey conducted by Hart Research Associates for the American Association for Colleges and Universities (AA&CU), reported that 86% of employers surveyed said that, regardless of major, college and university students should "take courses that build the civic knowledge, skills, and judgment essential for contributing to a democratic society."

About Higher Education Strategic Information and Governance (HESIG)

HESIG (www.stockton.edu/hughescenter/hesig) serves as an agent for constructive higher education policy change, by recommending strategic policy action aligned with a public agenda to serve the public good. Guiding principles include: enhancing college access, affordability, completion, productivity, accountability, and building partnerships to achieve these ends.

HESIG is a partner with the New Jersey Secretary of Higher Education's Student Success Collaborative.

Stockton's Daniel Fidalgo Tomé Named Chair-Elect of American Democracy Project Steering Committee

Galloway, NJ – Daniel Fidalgo Tomé, of Manahawkin, N.J., has been named chair-elect of the 2016-2017 national steering committee of the American Democracy Project (ADP), which focuses on higher education's role in preparing civically engaged citizens with 250 participating colleges and universities from 48 states and Puerto Rico.

"Being selected to be a part of the leadership team for the national American Democracy Project steering committee is a great privilege; and it is an honor that colleagues from around the country have recognized me in this way," Tomé said.

The ADP is a multi-campus initiative of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU). "We're delighted for Daniel to serve in this capacity," said Jen Domagal-Goldman, ADP national manager. "His ideas, energy and commitment to fostering civic learning and democratic engagement throughout public higher education are to be commended and will be invaluable in our strategic planning and execution of future ADP programming."

He joins past chair Leah Murray (Weber State University, Utah) and current chair Craig Berger (University of Maryland Baltimore County) as the 2016-2017 national ADP steering committee leadership team.

Tomé, who serves as Stockton University's director of Service-Learning, has been involved with ADP for five years, serving on the organization's steering committee for the past two. He will officially become chair in 2017-2018 at the end of the Civic Learning and Democratic Engagement (CLDE) Leadership National Meeting in Baltimore, Md., and will serve as past chair for 2018-2019.

The steering committee works on the strategic plan for the organization, an initiative of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU), planning the annual awards, the CLDE national meeting and the ADP national organizing meeting.

"The mission of Stockton University and the goals of the American Democracy Project are closely aligned in that both are committed to the education and preparation of civically engaged citizens," he said. "Critical thinking, social responsibility and problem solving are at the forefront of a Stockton education, and the ADP initiatives provide tools to community partners, faculty, staff and students to empower us to be creative and innovative educators. We want our students and alumni to address the needs of our communities."

Stockton University's Office of Service-Learning, overseen by Tomé, provides students, faculty, staff and community partners with opportunities to engage in "service with a purpose" through classroom and co-curricular activities.

Laser Zeppelin – Sat, June 18 at 8:15 p.m. NOTE: May contain lyrics that some parents find objectionable. Not recommended for ages under 15. Led Zeppelin is proclaimed by many critics to be the progenitors of heavy metal and hard rock, and their individualistic style reset the standards for many musical genres in the 1960s and 70s. Indeed, they have been hailed as one of the most successful, innovative, and influential bands, alongside Pink Floyd, U2, and The Beatles. Now you can relive the magical sounds of Led Zeppelin while enjoying a visual treat of custom laser imagery. Song Playlist: "Song Remains the Same," "Over the Hills and Far Away," "Good Times, Bad Times," "Immigrant Song," "No Quarter," "Black Dog," "Livin' Lovin' Maid," "Kashmir," "Stairway to Heaven," "Whole Lotta Love," and "Rock 'n' Roll."

Laser Pink Floyd: Dark Side of the Moon – Sat, June 25 at 7:00 p.m. NOTE: May contain lyrics that some parents find objectionable. Not recommended for ages under 15. This iconic album offers a mixture of psychedelic, rock, and jazz sounds. Its sonic backdrops and atmospheric soundscapes combined with a unique assortment of sound effects yield an emotional resonance. When accompanied by a diverse and unusual display of laser art, the overall feel is a dramatic and haunting atmosphere. Songs include "Speak to Me," "Breathe," "On the Run," "Time," "The Great Gig in the Sky," "Money," "Us and Them," "Any Colour You Like," "Brain Damage," and "Eclipse."

Laser Pink Floyd: The Wall – Sat, June 25 at 8:30 p.m. NOTE: May contain lyrics that some parents find objectionable. Not recommended for ages under 15. Pink Floyd is always a crowd favorite and The Wall is considered to be one of the best classic rock albums of all time. It is a timeless classic, and one of Pink Floyd's best,

Stockton's Nursing Program Ranked in Top 50 In Mid-Atlantic by NursingSchoolsAlmanac.com

Galloway, N.J. - Stockton University's Nursing program in the School of Health Sciences is rated among the top 50 nursing schools in the Mid-Atlantic region out of over 450 schools considered by NursingSchoolsAlmanac.com.

"We collected data on over 3,200 institutions nationwide, and just 10 percent made our final list," said Christopher McMillen, editor-in-chief of NursingSchoolsAlmanac.com. "We provide the web's most comprehensive and analytical resource for aspiring nurses to select their future nursing school."

The NursingSchoolsAlmanac.com ranking is based on three dimensions:

- The institution's academic prestige and perceived value;
- The breadth and depth of nursing programs offered;
- Student success, particularly on the NCLEX national licensure exam.

Stockton graduates' NCLEX pass rates have averaged 90 percent over the past five years.

Stockton's highly rated Nursing program includes:

- an entry-level baccalaureate Nursing Program (BSN) designed for the student who wishes to become a registered nurse (R.N.) while completing the Bachelor of Science in nursing degree;
- a Master of Science in Nursing Program designed for the registered nurse (R.N.) who wishes to pursue a graduate degree with specialty certification as an Adult-Gerontology Primary Care Nurse Practitioner;
- a path to build upon the MSN degree from Stockton by enrolling in the Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) at Chatham University. The online DNP program is intended to work with practitioners' schedules, helping balance work, family and studies while developing expert in specialized advanced nursing practice.

In addition, Stockton is opening a new Bachelor of Science in Nursing track this fall at the university's Manahawkin location, for students looking to earn a second bachelor's degree in Nursing. In fall 2017, the program will expand to accept transfer students there.

"At Stockton we are working to address the nationwide shortage of baccalaureate-prepared nurses," said Dean Theresa Bartolotta of the School of Health Sciences.

Veterans Can Gain Access to Health Care Services at OHI

OHI (Ocean Health Initiatives) a federally qualified health center with locations in Ocean County, has been named an eligible provider in The Veterans Choice Program. The Veterans Choice Program provides eligible veterans with the option to receive non-VA health care services from approved community health care providers, such as OHI, in their communities. Using this program will not have any impact on existing VA health care or any other VA benefit.

Some qualifying situations for veterans include waiting more than 30 days for VA medical care, or having to travel 40 miles or more to a VA medical facility, among others. Veterans can call 866-606-8198 to find out if they qualify or visit <http://www.va.gov/opa/choiceact/> and schedule an appointment at OHI.

Those Veterans who do qualify should use their Veterans Choice Card, which will allow them to request OHI as their community-based primary health care provider. The Ocean County Veterans Service Bureau, located on the first floor of the Ocean County One-Stop Center, 1027 Hooper Avenue, Toms River, can provide additional assistance to veterans about obtaining and using their Veterans Choice Card.

For more information about OHI, contact Kimberly Tozzi, community relations coordinator, at 732-719-9016.

Pest Control Company In NJ Unveiled Praying Mantis Sculpture At BugFest 2016

Toms River NJ. Parents, grandparents and people who are looking to have some fun and learn about insects plus can view the newly unveiled sculpture of a Giant Praying Mantis at Ozane Termite and Pest Control's Insectropolis, the Bugseum of New Jersey.

The newly unveiled sculpture was created by self-taught metal sculptor artist Bill Segunda from Butler, PA. Several of Bill's life-like sculptures were installed at the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh and at Disney's Epcot. He also created three, large, insect sculptures for the St. Louis Zoo as well as several twelve-foot steel cockroaches climbing the ABC Pest Control building in Dallas.

A large 35-diameter spider sculpture distracts drivers as they approach turn four of the Barber Motorsports in Birmingham. Ripley's Believe it or Not has purchased several pieces for their United States and international museums.

BugFest 2016 was held on Saturday, June 11th and featured Free Prizes, Crazy Cockroach Races, Buggy Face Painting, Scavenger Hunt, Temporary Bug Tattoos and the Eat-A-Bug Club Challenge. Central Ocean Rotary Club presented this year's event at Ozane Termite and Pest Control's Insectropolis, the Bugseum of New Jersey. The museum attractions at BugFest 2016 included beautiful and exotic insects from around the world, fun and educational games, an observation beehive and working ant farm and insect handlers allow visitors to touch tarantulas, scorpions, giant millipedes and hissing cockroaches.

When asked about the reasons behind creating this event, the host of the event, Ozane Termite and Pest Control said: All ticket sale proceeds will be donated to the Central Ocean Rotary Club Academic scholarship Program. Each year five high school students are awarded $1500. Supporting this event makes this possible.

For more information, please visit <http://www.ozane.com> or www.insectropolis.com 14, 2016.

The Opening Reception is Open to the Public and Admission is Free. Refreshments will be served. Monmouth Museum GALLERY TALK: August 3, 2016 from 7:00 - 8:00 PM

I have long been interested in the mind and how it is that we make sense of the world. Consciousness, embodiment, and mental "strange loops" are recurring themes in my work, suggested through titles, formal elements, and a meditative painting technique. I describe my paintings as Organized Organic Abstraction: carefully designed abstract artwork full of curvy, biomorphic shapes.

The paintings (most of which are on aluminum composite panels) are constructed through a slow, deliberate process that consists of thousands of carefully applied interlocking brushstrokes of acrylic paint.

Gradations of color in the underpainting interact with similar changes in the top layer of marks, allowing the mind's perceptual apparatus to create a sense of depth, movement, and luminosity.

The title of this show, Morphogenesis, refers to the creation of shape in biological creatures, especially through a process first described by British mathematician Alan Turing. I simulate that process on the computer until an artistically pleasing equilibrium is reached and use the resulting patterns as starting points for my paintings. Turing Patterns provide a link to my previous career as a software engineer and show how simple processes can produce complex and beautiful designs in both nature and in art.

Waretown Methodist Annual Yard Sale

By JoAnn LaRusso

Treasures, old and new, were piled high at Waretown United Methodist Church's annual yard sale to benefit the poor.

Pastor Erik Hall mingled with the buyers and sellers on the grounds of the church on Main St. in Waretown. Beverly Neyenhouse was also on hand as the crowd walked through the merchandise selecting unusual items that ranged from statues, TVs, clocks and clothing.

"This is a wonderful event," said Neyenhouse. "Each year we travel to the Red Bird Mission in Kentucky and work on homes for the impoverished."

Many of the visitors were church parishioners, who said they were glad to lend a helping hand. "We all care," said a man who didn't care to give his name but added, "Jesus is our Savior" as he rushed to his car arms full.

Most of the church parishioners have a credo built on faith, said Neyenhouse, and they are on a path to help the needy.

"Each year about 15 church members," myself included," she explained, "travel to Thousand Sticks Church, Kentucky, to a little town of the same name,, to help out with projects for the impoverished."

Up in the Appalachian Mountains, the town is a jumble of tiny houses, and trailers. The project is called, "The Red Bird Mission," said Neyenhouse. We help repair, rebuild, and do what is needed for folks living up there. In its' sixth year, the church group has encountered jobs of all kinds, and in mid-July when they leave next month, they are ready to repair a roof on a house, and build a walking path from the local church sanctuary to its' Fellowship Hall. "We stay about a week, and do what we can," she said. "Last year when we were there a flash flood hit the town, flooding a nearby Thrift Store. We cleaned up the store and got things back in place," she said.

"We never know what projects will await us until we get there," she said, adding that in the past the group has replaced walls, replaced bathrooms. Despite the travel and hard labor, Neyenhouse said the group looks forward to going each year. "We like to say it is good for the soul," she remarked.

In Waretown, it's much the same, with proceeds of the annual yard sale event going to help those who need it. Joanna Canfield, a parishioner, watched over the tables, as she relaxed in the good weather of the day. Our church sale is a fun day for all," Canfield said.
